

Teaching the Teachers: An OER-Focused Faculty Development Program Implemented by Instructional Designers

The Hewlett Foundation defines Open Educational Resources as:

“teaching, learning, and research resources that reside in the public domain or have been released under an intellectual property license that permits their free use and repurposing by others. OER include full courses, course materials, modules, textbooks, streaming videos, tests, software, and any other tools, materials, or techniques used to support access to knowledge.”

David Wiley’s 5R Permissions of Open Educational Resources

| | |
|---------------------|--|
| Retain | the right to make, own, and control copies of the content |
| Reuse | the right to use the content in a wide range of ways (e.g., in a class, in a study group, on a website, in a video) |
| Revise | the right to adapt, adjust, modify, or alter the content itself (e.g., translate the content into another language) |
| Remix | the right to combine the original or revised content with other open content to create something new (e.g., incorporate the content into a mashup) |
| Redistribute | the right to share copies of the original content, your revisions, or your remixes with others (e.g., give a copy of the content to a friend) |

Creative Commons Icons

| Icon | Right | Description |
|---|--------------------------|---|
|  | Attribution (BY) | Licensees may copy, distribute, display, and perform the work and make derivative works and remixes based on it only if they give the author or licensor the credits (attribution) in the manner specified by these. |
|  | Share-alike (SA) | Licensees may distribute derivative works only under a license identical (“not more restrictive”) to the license that governs the original work. Without share-alike, derivative works might be sublicensed with compatible but more restrictive license clauses (e.g., CC BY to CC BY-NC). |
|  | Non-commercial (NC) | Licensees may copy, distribute, display, and perform the work and make derivative works and remixes based on it only for non-commercial purposes. |
|  | No Derivative Works (ND) | Licensees may copy, distribute, display and perform only verbatim copies of the work, not derivative works and remixes based on it. |

Reflective Discussion

How do you promote OERs at your institution?

What barriers or constraints exist to OER adoption at your institution?

In which subject areas / classes would students most benefit from reduced textbook costs?

Which subject areas / classes would work best for OER adoption?

What resources are available through your institution that are cost-free to students?
