This seems dangerous.
We are building bridges.
Are we the architects, builders, and materials of change?
#1: Pick A Goal
A good goal is positive.
A good goal is clear.
A good goal is measurable:

“All instructional materials, co-curricular materials, electronic and information technologies, and online courses created or used by a WSU department or [instructor] in connection with any WSU course offering will be made accessible …” by July 29, 2020.
Be good, not perfect.
The “art history” problem...
Strive to improve.

Nude people sitting around a giant strawberry
Oops.
#2: Respect Those Who Hold the Line
Do we deserve our reputation?
Respect tradition.
Reasonable people will disagree with you.
Feed the right wolf.
Don’t abandon your bridge.
#3: Get the Tattoo
Career coaching works.
“A” for accessibility?
Accessibility is a butterfly effect.
Get the tattoo.
